Gold prices may see volatility in September

Gold futures climbed to all-time highs for three consecutive sessions, driven by strong safe-haven demand amid geopolitical uncertainties and significant global ETF inflows.

Hopes of a Fed pivot in September following hints of an imminent rate cut from Federal Reserve Chair Jerome Powell pushed gold to all time high of $2570 per ounce. Sharp rebound from month low of $2403.8 per ounce hit earlier in August to close the month at $2527 per ounce, highlighted the volatility of the gold market, driven by anticipated rate cuts, weaker dollar and gold's safe-haven appeal amidst geopolitical tensions.

Sharp cut in gold import duty to hike jewellery retailers' revenues by 22-25%:CRISIL

An S&P Global Company

The organised jewellery sector currently accounts for just over a third of the total market, while the remaining portion is controlled by the highly fragmented unorganised sector. Organised gold jewellery retailers are set to witness a 22-25 per cent increase in revenues this fiscal according to a CRISIL report. The forecast is 500-600 basis points higher than the earlier estimate of 17-19 per cent. This surge follows the significant reduction in import duties of around 900 basis points announced in the Union Budget. The expected growth will primarily be driven by higher sales volumes as retail gold prices decline from their previous lifetime highs.

The CRISIL report says, "Although the sudden drop in gold prices may result in inventory losses on existing stock, these losses are expected to be offset by improved demand." It adds, "Retailers will be able to reduce spending on marketing and promotional campaigns due to the stronger demand." The report, however warns, despite the growth in revenues, operating profitability is projected to decline slightly by 40-60 basis points to 7.1-7.2 per cent. higher sales volumes as retail gold prices decline from their previous lifetime highs.
